IVES'S ARREST A SURPRISE.

District-Attorney Martine Did Not Know That it Was to Take Place.

No one was more surprised than District-Attorney Martine and his assistant, Vernon M. Davis, at the announcement of the arrest yesterday of Henry S. Ives for the alleged larceny of a $160,000 check of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Rati-

President Dexter, of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railroad, was afraid that Ives might take slarm at the rumors of his probable indict-ment by the Grand Jury and take safety in flight, and so resterday's proceedings were precipitated on the return of the unsuccessful financier from a Western tour.

The case which is before the District-Attorney is entirely separate and distinct from that on which Justice Eiloreth issued his warrant. It is an allegation of the illegal issuance of the securities of the Mineral Range Railroad Company, of Michibal Company, of Michi

Mr. Davis said this morning that he would endeavor to get the case before the present Grand Jury before the holiday receas.

"If this is all we have to answer for," said Lawyer Edgar M. Johnson, counsel for Young Rapolson Ives, this morning, in referring to the charge of larceny on which his client was arrested last night, "I must say that we have perfectly plain sailing, and I would be willing to guarantee the result for a very small sum."

Local assemblies of the Knights of Labor, which use in good standing in the order, will not pay attention to the circular of the "Provisional Com-mittee" calling on them to join in the revoit from the order. The malcontents who are stirring up the division are deemed as sorcheads by the men who solded by the rule of the majority at the Min-neapolis General Assembly.

Surprise Expressed at the Sentences Imposed on the Offenders.

That Sergt. Webb should be fined and transferred to a precinct where he will be watched closely was not unlooked for, but that Roundsman Moynahan should be fined but be allowed to retain was 1,539. The total vote was 51,741 for both his stripes was unexpected, inasmuch as Rounds-candidates. Hugh E. Brady, Democrat, was men Sprague and Denneriein were reduced to the ranks, fined, and one of them was transferred. Policeman Grant was fined and transferred, his only offense being that he entered a saloon to which a restaurant was attached to settle a bill. Moynahan was the complainant in all these cases.

During the trial ex-Capt. Robbins swore that he asked to be retired raiber than meet Webb and Moynahan because they were men, in his opinion, who would "swear away any man's life." Then it was that Commissioner Fits John Porter lost his temper in coming to Moynahan's relief, and sharply ordered Robbins to "Shut up his mouth."

It is on record at Police Headquarters that Moynahan made eighteen charges against one patrolina, nearly every one of which was dismissed. Capt. Cortright, when sent to Tremont to succeed Robbins, found a terrible state of demortalisation, the former Captain having been held in contempt and defied by his men, and Sergt. Webb and Roundsman Moynahan running the precinct to suit themselves.

It was also alleged that in the past roundsman.

It was also alleged that in the past roundsmen and sergeants employed patroimen in building and reparing their houses. Whenever Inspector Conlin made a tour of the precinct the patroimen would send the word around, and something like order prevailed.

With Nergt. Webb transferred, and Sergts. O'Connor and Martens in charge, Inspector Conlin pledges himself to restore discipline.
